HUANGPU RIVER AND SUZHOU CREEK

Huangpu River and Suzhou Creek

Shanghai was born of the nurturing of the Huangpu River and the Suzhou Creek. Converging here, the river and the creek today still endow this international mega city with great charm. Lined by golden waterfronts through the entire city, the majestic Huangpu River has long been a world-famous "parlor" of Shanghai, while the 42-kilometer shoreline of the Suzhou Creek winds through downtown Shanghai like a long ribbon, dotted by tremendous industrial heritage sites and the still splendid urban culture.

Shiliupu Wharf

Shiliupu Wharf dominates an inescapable page in Shanghai's profound shipping history, and is also a particularly prosperous section of the Huangpu Riverfront. You will hear wonderful legends of voyages starting from here and see important landmarks of the city, such as Shiliupu Waterfront, the Bund Finance Center, and The Bund.

Fosun Foundation Art Center

No. 600, Zhongshan Road (E-2), Huangpu District

Fosun Foundation Art Center is an independent building standing in the middle of The Bund Finance Center. Its most prominent feature is the three-layer golden rotatable curtain on the facade, which combines both Chinese and Western cultural elements. The curtain rotates with the music around a fixed point four times a day.

Bund One Art Museum

No. 1, Zhongshan Road (E-1), Huangpu District

The Bund One Art Museum sits inside the No. 1 building on Zhongshan Road (E-1). The building is acclaimed as "the first building of the Exotic Building Clusters on the Bund". It is now the building of Jiushi International Art Center. The museum is engaged in fostering public interest in art and promoting art education.

Waldorf Astoria Shanghai on the Bund Hotel

No. 2, Zhongshan Road (E-1), Huangpu District

When first built in 1864, the building hosted the Shanghai Club. It was later changed to the Dongfeng Hotel well known to the older generation of Shanghai residents. Now the old building has been transformed once again into a low-profile luxurious Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

The Past and Present of the Huangpu River

Located in the Yangtze River Delta, Shanghai has dense water systems. The city was born out of water and prospered from the Huangpu River. With its two banks transformed from the original tidal flats to densely distributed industrial warehouses, and then to continuous riverside sightseeing trails, the Huangpu River has enormous impact on the city's steps forward. The two banks of the Huangpu River that have become a "parlor" of Shanghai open to the world boast not just many beautiful buildings, but also a variety of special constructions, such as factories, docks, and bridges. All of them form the most unique scenery of Shanghai, giving the city a strong urban breath and intense historical charm. Whether exploring history or looking forward to the future, you can find good answers on the two banks of the Huangpu River.

The Old City — Root of Shanghai

The Old City has been witnessing the historical development of Shanghai since it was established as a county in the Song Dynasty. The Old City constitutes a physical display of Shanghai's 700-year cultural path and a visual interpretation of the city's urban civilization. As a political, economic and cultural center of Shanghai in history, the Old City today still retains many ancient buildings, making it well-known at home and abroad and drawing visitors to trace the old times of the city.

Relics of the Old City

Nanxiang Steamed Bun Restaurant
No. 87, Yuyuan Road

In the first year of the 20th century (1900), Wu Xiangsheng from Nanxiang Town, Jiading County opened a dim sum restaurant here. It was originally called Chang Xing Lou but renamed Nanxiang Steamed Bun Restaurant later. Early in the 1920s and 1930s, it was already a household name. Specialties: Fresh Pork Soup Dumplings, Crab Roe Soup Dumplings, Crab Roe and Fresh Pork Soup Dumplings

Lu Bo Lang Restaurant
No. 115, Yuyuan Road

Sitting beside the Zigzag Bridge, Lu Bo Lang is a good companion of Hu Xin Ting. It was built in the Qianlong Reign of the Qing Dynasty as a southwestern part of Pan's Yuyuan Garden, transformed into a teahouse operated by a merchant in the Qing Dynasty, and expanded into the Lu Bo Lang Restaurant in 1991. Known for its Shanghai-style cuisine, the restaurant is a signature of Shanghai flavor. Specialties: Sauteed Shelled Shrimps, Braised Jumbo Sea Cucumber with Shrimp Roe, Eyebrow-shaped Flaky Pastry

Yuyuan Garden Malls

Boasting a wide variety of products, the Yuyuan Garden Malls around the City God Temple is another indispensable signature and symbol of the Yuyuan Garden. It is mainly composed of the area around the Fuyoumen Shopping Mall on the Fuyou Road, which is less than a kilometer long, and the area around the Yueyuan Shopping Mall.

City God Temple
No. 249, Middle Fangbang Road

The history of building a city god temple in downtown Shanghai has been recorded since the Tang Dynasty. The ancient temple that sits now in the Old City has been carrying and displaying the beliefs and traditions of the Chinese nation since the Ming and Qing dynasties. In 1994, the City God Temple's renovation was resumed and later the temple was gradually opened to the public. At present, the Taoist temple and its surrounding tourist attractions, such as the snack street, Zigzag Bridge, Hu Xin Ting Teahouse and Yuyuan Garden, are part of a unique tourism and cultural signature of Shanghai's Old City.

Yuyuan Garden
No. 218, Anren Street

The Yuyuan Garden has a history of more than 460 years so far. Built in 1559, it was originally the private garden of Pan Yunduan who used to be Governor of Sichuan. In the Qing Dynasty, the garden became a professional club for the agricultural and commercial communities, and teahouses and taverns appeared successively. In 1956, the municipal government began to renovate the garden and opened it to the public in 1961. As a typical historic garden of the Chinese Jiangnan style, the Yuyuan Garden has long been a famous tourist attraction in Shanghai.

Hu Xin Ting Teahouse
No. 257, Yuyuan Old Street

Sitting in the center of the City God Temple area, Hu Xin Ting is the oldest existing teahouse in Shanghai. It was originally called Fu Yi Ting, rebuilt into Hu Xin Ting in the Qing Dynasty and became a teahouse officially in 1855. Now it is acclaimed as the "No. 1 Teahouse in Shanghai".

Song Yue Lou Restaurant
No. 19-27, Bailing Road

The time-honored restaurant was founded in 1910, offering vegetarian noodles, vegetarian pastries and various vegetarian dishes in imitation of meat ones. Given its long history, Song Yue Lou is acclaimed as "the No. 1 Vegetarian Restaurant in Shanghai". In early years, Feng Zikai and some other Shanghai celebrities were regular customers of the restaurant, impressed by its vegetarian baozi. Specialties: Baozi Stuffed with Vegetables, Chinese Crabapple Cakes, Luo Han Vegetarian Noodles

Jiujiaochang Road

The Jiujiaochang Road west of the City God Temple is an old road with a long history. It starts from Fuyou Road in the north and ends at Middle Fangbang Road in the south, running about 299 meters long. In the Ming Dynasty, this place was for garrison and military exercises.

Huabao Tower No. 265, Middle Fangbang Road

The elegant and luxurious Huabao Tower was once the earliest antique market and the largest handicraft shopping mall in Shanghai. After being upgraded and renovated, it focuses on mid-to-high-end tea sets and tea culture with life aesthetics, and incorporates multiple business types, such as exhibition, literati gathering, auction and live broadcast.

Ancient Town Park
No. 333, Renmin Road

Located in the northeast corner of the Yuyuan Garden, this place was once the well-known "Danfeng Tower", which was a corner of the city wall of former Shanghai County and one of the "Eight Scenic Spots of Shanghai". The city wall was built in Shanghai to resist the invaders. After peace returned to the Old City, the nearby Danfeng Tower and some other buildings were moved onto the city wall for the people to pray and enjoy entertainment.

Dajing Pavilion
No. 259-269, Dajing Road

Located at the Small North Gate of the Old City, it is one of the two sections of the ancient city wall that have survived to this day in the Old City of Shanghai. The wall of Dajing Pavilion was originally an arrow platform, but was built into the Guan Yu Temple later. In the Qing Dynasty, this place was named Dajing after the inscription "Da Qian Sheng Jing (Great Scene of the World)". In the first year of the Republic of China era, the city wall hindered the development of the city's economy and transportation, and thus was demolished. But the Dajing Pavilion and a 50-meter-long section of the ancient wall beside it remained as the wall demolition command was located at the Dajing Pavilion.

Explore Five Outskirts by Metro

Apart from the downtown area with many great places, the five outskirts on the outskirts of Shanghai have plenty of cultural and historical attractions that form a diverse map of cultural and tourism treasures waiting to be explored. Now you can reach them directly by metro.

Find Arts in Metro Stations

The designs of some metro stations in Shanghai are so special. Come to check the most beautiful one in your heart.

Fudan University 18

Exit 1 of the station is the first station in Shanghai that extends into a campus. The interior of the station is dominated by bright red. The gray white walls are engraved with Fudan's motto, famous quotes and various works of art, highlighting the cultural heritage of the nationally renowned university.

Site of the First CPC National Congress - South Huangpi Road 11 14

The design of the station is named "Shade of Huangpi", and the gate-like steel frames symbolize the spinning workshops, which are cradle of the workers' movement in western Shanghai. A large amount of white separated by some red demonstrates a texture of industrial aesthetics.

Caoyang Road 14

Designed on the theme of "Working Class—A Backbone Force", the gate-like steel frames symbolize the spinning workshops, which are cradle of the workers' movement in western Shanghai. A large amount of white separated by some red demonstrates a texture of industrial aesthetics.

Jing'an Temple 14

The Jing'an Temple Station adopts the elements of wooden pillars and stone pillar bases of the ancient Jing'an Temple for its station hall and platforms, so that passengers walking in the underground space can easily relate to the cityscape on the ground.

Yuyuan Garden 14

Here, art is blended perfectly with light and shadows. Aluminum plates in different shapes are combined into "waves" of the Huangpu River. Curves, the other source of inspiration, create beautiful rhythms.

Lujiazui 2 14

Outside the turnstiles in a passage close to Exit 1 and the Shanghai Tower, there is a curvy space where thick pillars support some white hollowed-out "mushroom clouds", exuding an ethereal vibe as if in the universe.

Wuzhong Road 15

Geometrically cut metal and LED lights create "an image of the city" as long as more than 70 meters in the station's curved hall, brimming with hi-tech features.

Changfeng Park 15

The name of this place comes from the poem "I will mount a long wind and break heavy waves", so the design of the station incorporates such elements as mountains, rivers and rocks.

Zhuguang Road 17

Solid pure white tile walls are set as partitions to emphasize pure white and rough aesthetics.

Changyi Road 14 18

As the route hosts quite some structures, such as a tunnel, a passageway and Metro Line 18, the station hall has to be supported by four pillars with a length and width of over two meters. Furthermore, the unique design of "fiery trees and silver flowers" is added to please the eye.

Danyang Road 18

All elements in the station are covered in black and white, representing the "past" and "present" of Yangpu Riverfront. The dividing line in metallic color on the ground stands for a "timeline", marked with some historic sites and years.

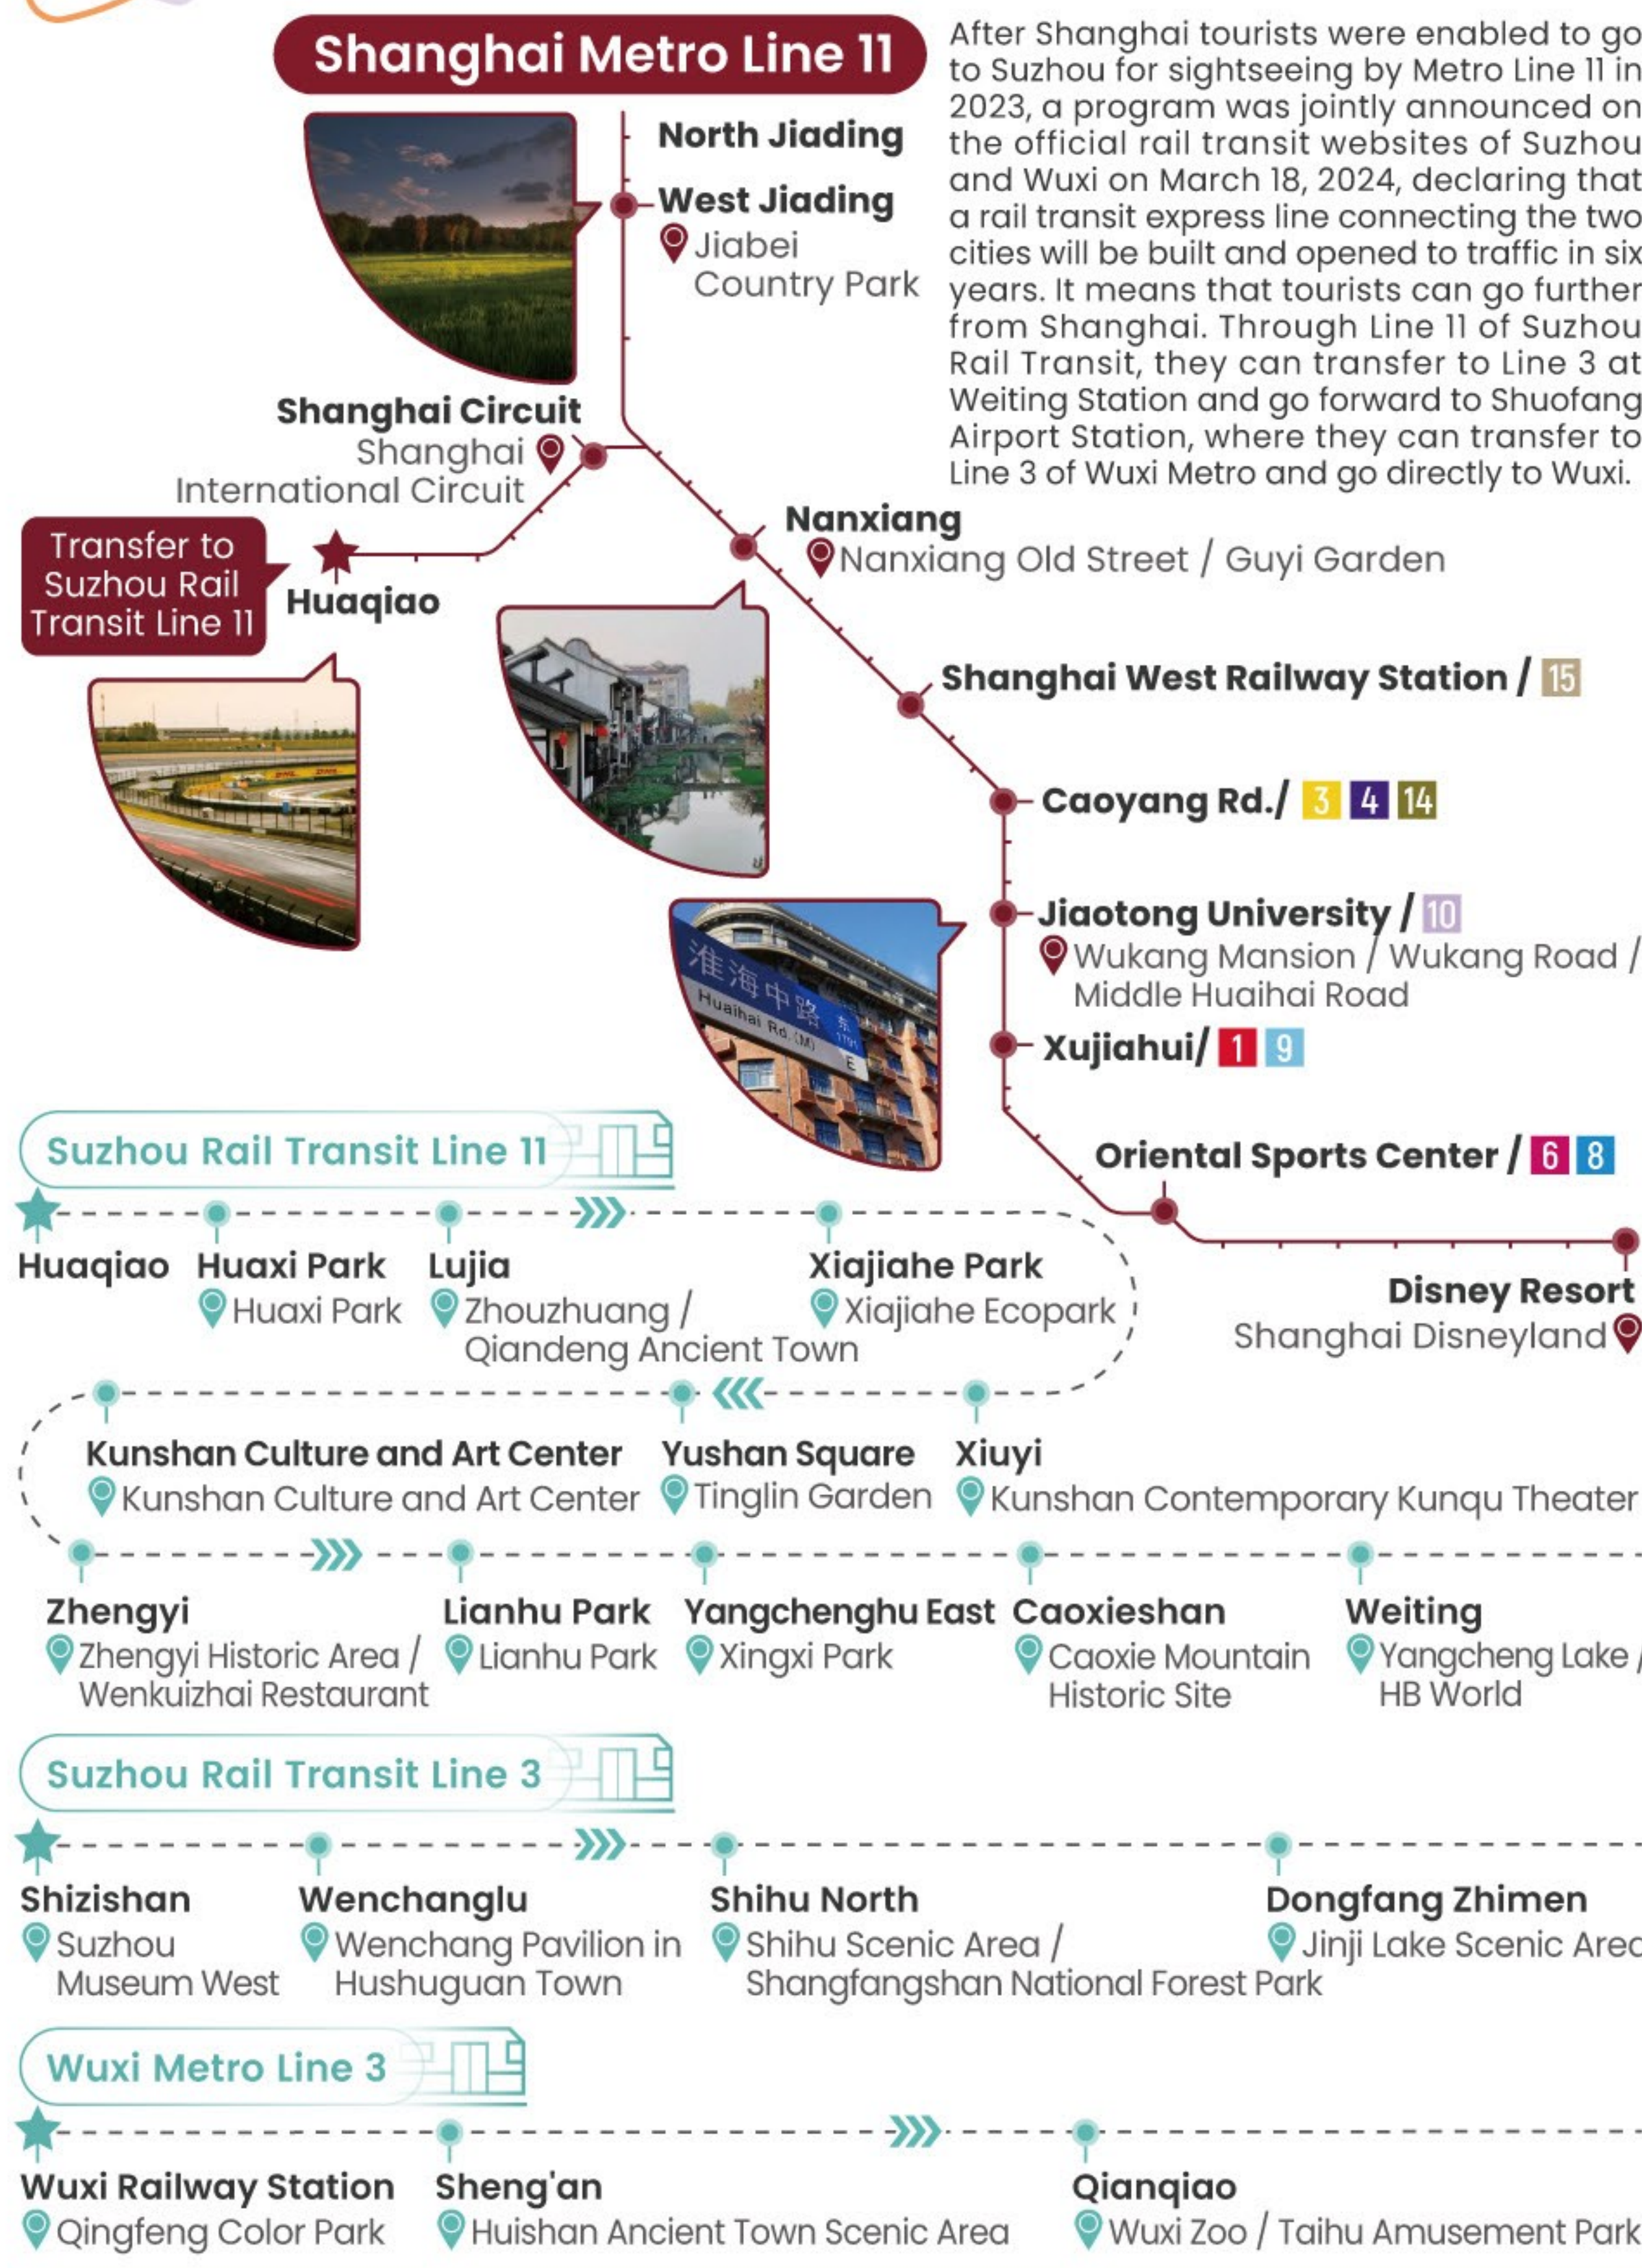

Dishui Lake 16

At the end of a ride on a long slow-moving escalator from the sunken square between Exit 1 and Exit 2 of Dishui Lake Station, you are welcomed by a vast blue lake.

Explore Three Cities by Metro

Shanghai · Suzhou · Wuxi

After Shanghai tourists were enabled to go to Suzhou for sightseeing by Metro Line 11 in 2023, a program was jointly announced on the official rail transit websites of Suzhou and Wuxi on March 18, 2024, declaring that a rail transit express line connecting the two cities will be built and opened to traffic in six years. It means that tourists can go further from Shanghai. Through Line 11 of Suzhou Rail Transit, they can transfer to Line 3 at Weiting Station and go forward to Shuofang Airport Station, where they can transfer to Line 3 of Wuxi Metro and go directly to Wuxi.

Shanghai Metro Museum

No. 1799, Wuzhong Road

Shanghai Metro Museum is close to the Ziteng Road Station of Shanghai Metro Line 10. The entire museum tells the story of the Shanghai Metro in several parts, including the history, functions, culture and safety of the metro as well worldwide metros.

A TOUR OF MUSEUMS

A Tour of Museums

Visiting great exhibitions, museums and cultural venues in Shanghai has become a reason why tourists love this city. Shanghai's museums are second to none in the country in terms of number, variety and the fields covered. They create a background color for the city's cultural appeal.

Memorial of the First National Congress of the Communist Party of China

Shanghai Museum East

No. 1952, Century Avenue, Pudong New Area
2 Shanghai Science & Technology Museum
4 6 Pudian Road

The museum was completed in February 2024 with a total of 20 exhibition halls and interactive experience spaces. Its eight permanent exhibition halls are indeed eight "textbooks of ancient Chinese art history". Positioned as "the world's top museum of ancient Chinese art", the museum has been developed into an important cultural window "for the world to see China" and a cultural "parlor" of the people's city.

Shanghai History Museum (Shanghai Revolution Museum)

No. 325, West Nanjing Road, Huangpu District
1 2 8 People's Square

It is a topological museum comprehensively reflecting the history of Shanghai. The preparation for its construction began in the 1950s and the actual construction was completed in 1983. It focuses on presenting the historical evolution of modern Shanghai in the aspects of politics, economy, culture, society, life, etc.

Shanghai Astronomy Museum

No. 380, Lingang Avenue, Pudong New Area
16 Dishui Lake

It is the largest astronomy museum in size around the world. As a large-scale popular science museum, Shanghai Astronomy Museum (a branch of Shanghai Science & Technology Museum) provides a panoramic view of the vastness of the universe and offers visitors a journey of multi-sensory exploration.

Shanghai Sihang Warehouse Memorial Hall

No. 374, South Huangpi Road, Huangpu District
1 Site of the First CPC National Congress · South Huangpi Road
10 13 Site of the First CPC National Congress · Xintiandi

It is a national first-class museum, including the Site of the First National Congress of the Communist Party of China, an oath-taking hall, and a newly built exhibition hall.

Shanghai Museum on People's Square

No. 201, Renmin Avenue, Huangpu District
1 2 8 People's Square

Founded in 1952, the museum was formerly known as the Shanghai Museum (R.A.S.). As one of the earliest museums in China, it celebrated its 150th anniversary in 2024. Aiming to become a "world civilization museum" now, the Shanghai Museum on People's Square is building a platform "for China to see the world" by cooperating with internationally renowned institutions and introducing more high-quality special exhibitions.

Shanghai Natural History Museum

COFFEE AND FOOD TOUR

Coffee Map

CAFE

Ever since coffee was first introduced to Shanghai citizens in 1853, its mellow taste has gradually blended into the streets and alleys of the city, making the drink an important embodiment of Shanghai-style culture. The Shanghai International Coffee Culture Festival held in 2024 demonstrates that this city with more than 9,500 coffee shops is building its international signature as "a world center of coffee culture".

Museum and Coffee

A museum is not just a carrier of culture and academic treasures, but also a leisurely parlor of a city; a cafe is not just a space brimming with fragrance and leisure, but also a street corner condensed with scenery and history. The combination of museum and cafe brings you a double experience of Shanghai's coffee culture.

Long-Standing Shows

Era — Intersection of Time at Shanghai Circus World

No. 2266, Gonghexin Road, Jing'an District
1 Shanghai Circus World

Shanghai Era Entertainment Ltd. launched the Era — Intersection of Time show in 2005. The show had been performed every day until 2020, winning multiple awards, such as the Project of China National Classic Stage Arts. The Era2 — Spirit of Shanghai show has retained the positioning of the Era brand: "Chinese elements, Chinese-foreign cooperation, Chinese stories, international expression". Combining modern technology and Chinese acrobatic art seamlessly, the Era2, as a resident show at Shanghai Circus World, presents a perfect audio-visual experience for Chinese and foreign audiences.

Shanghai Romance Park

No. 1750, Shibo Avenue, Pudong New Area
13 Shibo Avenue

Located at the Expo site beside the Huangpu River, it is a brand new performing park that goes beyond imagination. There are more than ten theatres and performance venues in it, such as the Romance Theatre, the Performing Arts Theatre and the Music Square. A grand song and dance The Romantic Show of Shanghai, a kids show WA! Dinosaurs and a 5D live show The Earthquake take turns to be staged. These innovative, interactive and immersive multi-media experiences offer visitors an art feast of Shanghai.

Dream Cruise

No. 2852 Binjiang Avenue, Pudong New Area
(Oriental Pearl Tourist Wharf — Ship Zhonghua)
2 14 Lujiazui

The immersive drama Dream Cruise is performed on the Huangpu River in Shanghai. It is the first immersive mobile theatre on water in the city. With a suspenseful theme and science fiction elements, the play tells the story of a handed-down "luminous pearl" on a cruise ship on the Huangpu River in the 1930s. The play mainly targets young audiences and combines the performance with river views. While watching the show and appreciating the scenery, audiences can take part in interesting evidence-collecting plot interactions and experience a fantastic journey through time and space.

Secret Love in Peach Blossom Land

5F, Metro City, No. 1111, Zhaojiabang Road, Xuhui District
1 9 11 Xujiahui

The play is one of the most celebrated works of Chinese-language theatre artist Stan Lai. It tells a story about two third-rate theatre troupes, Secret Love and Peach Blossom Land who compete for a rehearsal stage. In 2017, an exclusive version of the play was born on the stage of Theatre Above, performed by a strong cast of the Performance Workshop trained by Stan Lai himself. In 2023, the exclusive version started resident performances at Theatre Above, allowing more people to find an "ideal theatrical retreat" in the bustling city center anytime.

The Solitary Gourmet

Star Space No. 99, L8 of Shimao Festival City, No. 829, East Nanjing Road, Huangpu District
1 2 8 People's Square

The theatre is adapted from The Solitary Gourmet, a highly acclaimed IP work. For the first time, the concept of "dining in earnest" combined with the love as in We Made a Beautiful Bouquet is integrated into a theatric performance. During the play, the audience in each zone enjoys a different immersive dining experience in a Chinese restaurant built after the real scenes in Chinatown. Such a "small environmental theatre" is different from the traditional proscenium stage, and the space can be freely adjusted according to the content of the play. The combination of "performance + experience" allows both to be upgraded and updated continuously.

Sleep No More

McKinnon Hotel, No. 1013, West Beijing Road, Jing'an District
2 12 13 West Nanjing Road

The immersive classic Sleep No More, Shanghai has remained popular since its premiere in Shanghai in 2016. Breaking the "fourth wall" stage boundary of traditional drama and taking aesthetic inspiration from the film noir movies, the play presents the adaptations of multiple classic literary works, films and TV series, including Shakespeare's classic tragedy Macbeth. With its unique theatrical experience and international-level artistic quality, it brings audiences into an immersive theatrical fantasy world.

CITY OF PERFORMING ARTS

As life is always highlighted by performances and arts, the entertainment performances in this international metropolis are like the great wines on the feast of Shanghai Tour, waiting for you to have a taste in over 100 performing spaces.

Classic Performing Spaces

Mercedes-Benz Arena
No. 1200, Shibo Avenue, Pudong New Area
China Art Museum
Mercedes-Benz Arena is both an international live entertainment venue and a mixed-use entertainment complex, with a Main Stage, a small Live House and a Retail District.

Shanghai International Dance Center
No. 1650, Hongqiao Road, Changning District
Shuicheng Road
It is currently the only cultural venue dedicated to dance in Shanghai, the first professional dance center in China and even in the whole Asia, and a world-class dancing art base ranking among the best in China. It will be a new cultural landmark of Shanghai.

Shanghai Dramatic Arts Centre
No. 288, Anfu Road, Xuhui District
Changshu Road
As the only national-level professional drama group in Shanghai, it draws artists from all over the world with its openness and inclusiveness, and attracts audiences with rich diversified stage works. It is a modern world-class theatre with international prestige, equal to the status of the city.

Shanghai Oriental Art Center
No. 425, Dingxiang Road, Pudong New Area
Shanghai Science and Technology Museum
Located in the Lujiazui Financial City of Pudong New Area, the Shanghai Oriental Art Center is one of Shanghai's iconic cultural facilities. Viewed from a height, the Art Center looks like a beautiful phalaenopsis orchid with its five "petals" hosting respectively the lobby, the recital hall, the concert hall, the exhibition hall and the opera hall.

Shanghai Poly Grand Theatre
No. 159, Baiyin Road, Jiading District
Baiyin Road
It is the first theatre in China to have a water-scape auditorium. With beautiful surroundings, complete facilities and convenient transportation, it provides art fans with world-class artistic enjoyment. Put into operation in 2014, the theatre is the first top-notch artistic venue in western Shanghai.

Bank of Communications New Bund 31 Performing Arts Center
No. 777, West Gaoqing Road, Pudong New Area
Oriental Sports Center
The new performing arts center opened at the end of 2023 has hosted various important performances. Foresighted and creative, it incorporates performance appreciation, artistic immersion, cultural transmission and social space, bringing visitors a cultural lifestyle that nourishes creativity with art.

Theatres in Huangpu District

Shanghai Grand Theatre
No. 300, Renmin Avenue, Huangpu District
People's Square
It is the first modern theatre in China built as per the standards of international first-class theatres. The shape of "crystal palace" implies an ancient Chinese belief that "sky is round and earth is square". It has become a display platform for world-class artworks, a communication platform for international art activities and a promotion platform for public art education.

Cadillac - Shanghai Concert Hall
No. 523, East Yan'an Road, Huangpu District
People's Square Dashijie
As China's first professional music performance venue, the concert hall was designed by Fan Wenzhao and Zhao Shen, two of the first group of Chinese architects who had studied abroad. It was completed in 1930 and renamed Shanghai Concert Hall in 1959. The concert hall is the center of Shanghai's music activities and a cultural landmark of the city.

Shanghai Xin Guang Theatre
No. 586, Ningbo Road, Huangpu District
People's Square East Nanjing Road
Its predecessor is the Strand Theatre built in 1930. China's first sound film The Singing Peony starring Hu Die was released here. After Shanghai was liberated, the theatre had been dedicated to Shanghai Opera for a long time. It had been renamed several times and also served as a cinema. Its reconstruction was completed in 1994, turning it to the present Xin Guang Theatre.

Shanghai Tianchan Yifu Theatre
No. 701, Fuzhou Road, Huangpu District
People's Square
Founded in 1925 and formerly known as Tianchan Stage, it is the only theatre in Shanghai that stages Peking Opera mostly and is the oldest existing theatre in the city offering performances of traditional Chinese operas. It was once acclaimed as "the largest theatre in the Far East". People used to say, "A Peking Opera actor has to perform at Tianchan to become famous." In 2021, it returned with a new look.

Chang Jiang Theatre
4F, No. 35, Huanghe Road, Huangpu District
People's Square
Formerly known as Carlton Theatre, founded in 1923 and designed by Laszlo Hudec, designer of Park Hotel, the theatre is an important drama performance venue in Shanghai. In 2018, it was rebuilt. Now it incorporates multiple functions, including carrying forward experience, educational promotion and cultural exchange.

HuangPu Theatre
No. 780, East Beijing Road, Huangpu District
People's Square
Its predecessor is the Lyric Theatre known as "a palace of Chinese films". It was in this old cinema that the film Children of Troubled Times (1935) was premiered and the Chinese anthem March of the Volunteers was first sounded as the theme song of the film.

SAIC - Shanghai Culture Square
No. 597, Middle Fuxing Road, Huangpu District
South Shaanxi Road
The site of the square was originally the French-built "Canidrome", which was later rebuilt into the city's cultural square. It is a palace of art in the greenery and the world's largest underground theatre, equipped with high-tech, changeable and multi-functional stages, firstly in the country integrating the fountain and ice-making installations and high-tech means into the creation of musicals.

Shanghai Dashijie
No. 1, South Xizang Road, Huangpu District
Dashijie
Dashijie (Great World) built in 1917 used to be the largest amusement venue in the Far East. The renovated Dashijie offers visiting citizens and tourists richer cultural experiences. In the daytime, there are nostalgic traditional farce shows and shadow plays; in the evening, visitors can enjoy dramas, musicals and immersive game plays presented by Mahua Fun Age and other troupes.

Shanghai Gong Stage
No. 433, East Yan'an Road, Huangpu District
Dashijie
As one of the four major Peking opera stages in Shanghai in the past, it was famous for presenting Shanghai-style Peking opera that features trick settings and long serial plays. Later, Gong Stage was renovated and reopened in 2010 as a permanent venue for the stage show Era - Intersection of Time.

Performing Spaces in Shopping Malls
